★ Dear Sir,

Once again Swansea Town have started the season unimpressively and relegation to the Fourth Division looks a grave possibility. The fan potential for a winning team in the town is terrific but until there is some money spent on some good new players the success and support of the club will continue to dwindle.

To be a soccer force these days a club needs to buy big and think big. If Swansea Town did this, they would find that their support would treble itself and the club would soon be repaid in full for the money it had spent.

In the last few seasons Coventry and Hull City are just two examples of teams who "thought big" and were justly repaid for doing so.

Yours Faithfully,

A. G. BARRY
